Buttermere. This is one of the smallest of the lakes, only about 1¼ miles long and less than half-a-mile at its greatest breadth. It lies nestled in among the lofty fells of Robinson, High Stile, and Buttermere Red Pike. Buttermere village consists principally of three small hotels, a smaller church, and the legend of a deceived local beauty married and deserted by a bigamist and forger who called himself the Hon. Augustus Hope.
